sity. Roberto E. Barrios is Associate Professor of Anthropology at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale We would like to acknowledge our guest editorial board—Gregory Button, Susanna Hoffman, Arthur Murphy, Anthony Oliver-Smith, and Linda Whiteford—for working with us to select and review abstracts submitted for inclusion in this issue and for providing invaluable editorial advice throughout the production process. Next, we would like to thank past Editor-in-Chief, Mark Moberg, and current Editor-in-Chief, Sarah Lyon, for their support of this special issue and guidance since its inception. We owe a debt of gratitude to SfAA Executive Director Tom May for his advice and encouragement in developing and producing this issue. We thank all issue contributors and the many anonymous reviewers whose commitment to advancing quality applied scholarship of risk, hazards, and disasters is the very stuff of which this special issue is made. We would like to thank the SfAA and the Risk and Disasters Topical Interest Group for fostering the development of a community of inquiry that has inspired and nurtured the scholars
