

I Dissent

I am the faculty member who posted a photo to Twitter while holding a skull. This photo was not different to many previous photos the university, college, and department used to promote anthropology. It is dishonest to portray this as an aberration of our departmental procedures.

Photography in anthropology has been a valuable tool in the past.