Course Description

Introduction to Justice Studies examines the historical and philosophical development of the justice system; description, analysis and evaluation of criminal justice agencies, and explores the relationship between theory and practice in the United States. Note: Students must achieve a grade of "C" or better (not C-) to fulfill Justice Studies major requirements.

Course Learning Outcomes (CLO)

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

1. Provide an introduction of the characteristics, structure, and processes of justice system operations in the United States.
2. Explain criminology, criminal law, criminal statistics, and constitutional criminal procedure as it relates to practices within the justice system.
3. Describe and discuss the purpose, functions, critical issues, and societal interactions of the three major components of the justice system, which includes the police, courts, and corrections.

Required Texts/Readings

active in this course, which relies in great part on the reflections, discussions, and exercises in class. Attendance is encouraged in order to receive maximum points. All discussions will be monitored by the professor.

Exams

Midterm and Final Examination (40%): You will be administered a midterm and final examination, each worth 20% of your final grade. Each exam will cover material from lectures (including all media presented) and assigned readings. The midterm will be held during the midpoint of the semester while the final will be held during the final exam period. Each exam will be non-cumulative and comprised of multiple choice and short answer questions. The dates for both mid and final exam will be announced at least 45 days in advance.

Special Projects

Challenging the Institution of Law Enforcement (20%): Students will leverage web-based technologies or multi-media platforms to create their own special project. These projects can include a website, short video, slideshow presentation, creative poster, or something you believe deserves consideration. Special Projects must be approved by the instructor in order to receive full credit. Each student will be evaluated by their peers and the instructor. Students will be provided a rubric for the special project. Detailed assignment guidelines will be provided via Canvas.
