Course Description

This is an introductory course to forensic science, which is the application of science to criminal and civil laws that is enforced by police agencies in a criminal justice system. The scope of this course includes the history of forensic science and its sub-disciplines; recognition, documentation, collection, preservation, and analysis of physical evidence; analytical techniques for organic and inorganic materials; biological, chemical and physical types of forensic evidence and its analysis; capabilities and limitations of forensic trace analysis and its representation in court.

This course is delivered completely on-line via

Course format and schedule

Despite being delivered asynchronously, this class is not self-paced. You will have a set of dedicated readings, videos, discussions and assignments every week, so make sure to stay on the top of things and meet the deadlines.

There are six content modules in the course, ranging in length from 1 to 4 weeks + an introductory module. Each Module will begin officially at the beginning of each week, while each week's content (within a Module) will become available on Saturday before the start of that week (for those interested in getting started sooner). Each of Modules 1– 5 will culminate in a quiz, which aims to assess your understanding of the material in the respective Module. The due date for each quiz will be within 7 days of finishing the respective Module. The quizzes are not cumulative.

The dates are approximate and subject to change (with a fair notice) according to students' progress and/or any unforeseen circumstances. Any change to the class schedule will be announced via Canvas Announcements at the earliest opportunity.

Course schedule:

Module 0: Jan 27-31; Welcome to FS 11. Log in and get familiar with Canvas, introduce yourself in the discussion forum, read the syllabus, check the requirements for Week 1.

Examples include the following:

1. Complete a short professional development course in forensic science (in any forensic discipline) offered by the National Institute of Justice marked “extra credit” in the Forensic Science module and submit your certificate of completion by the deadline (check Canvas). Successful completion of this assessment task will add 1% to the final grade.
2. Students can write a research paper about their future career that is of interest to the student or about a forensic science controversy. The paper should be either in CSE or APA format and contain an introduction, a body of research, and a conclusion. The length of a paper should be between 2 and 3 standard pages in 1.5 font and contain in-text citations from at least three sources (preferably peer-reviewed papers). Successful completion of this assessment task will add 1% to the final grade.
3. During the course, there will be multiple opportunities to improve your grade by answering bonus questions or performing additional assignments related to material discussed in class. The questions will be provided as either an option in the compulsory quizzes or as a separate bonus quiz.

Late Work and Make Ups

Real life has deadlines and so do college classes. With this in mind, manage your time responsibly with the knowledge that late work will generally not be accepted. If you know ahead of time that you will be offline when an assignment is due, complete it early. Make-ups will generally not be given unless extraordinary, documented circumstances exist.

Certainly, if you have a genuine problem, please contact me at the earliest convenience and I will gladly do my best to help you. If you are in any doubt about the requirements of an assignment, or due dates/times, please re-read the assignment and/or schedule. If your question is still unanswered, contact me for clarification.

Department of Justice Studies Reading and Writing Philosophy

The Department of Justice Studies is committed to scholarly excellence. Therefore, the Department promotes academic, critical, and creative engagement with language (i.e., reading and writing) throughout its curriculum. A sustained and intensive exploration of language prepares students to think critically and to act meaningfully in interrelated areas of their lives—personal, professional, economic, social, political, ethical, and cultural. Graduates of the Department of Justice Studies leave San José State University prepared to enter a range of careers and for advanced study in a variety of fields; they are prepared to more effectively identify and ameliorate injustice in their personal, professional and civic lives. Indeed, the impact of literacy is evident not only within the span of a specific course, semester, or a
